

Just because I may have used the services of a business, regardless of nature, that gives them no right or privilege to contact me at their whim to "reestablish" their interests. I have a non-published number for a reason. Before the no-contact statute came into being, I was being harrassed at all hours of the day and night by "associate organizations" to whom those businesses leased my information. I have had to change my number four times since moving to this city because of that. Since the statute came into effect, I've been blissfully left alone. Do not allow history to repeat itself; I have a right to my privacy. Thank you.
